The Tiger at least died game.

It wasn't an April fool joke for the knight of the green cloth.

President Bonilla of Honduras is not running for office this year. Just now he is running away from it.

If President Roosevelt were a speculator, every thought he thought about the railroad question would be money in his pocket.

It looks as though Phoenix's murder mystery is to remain one in spite of the fact that the alleged murderer has written letters to that city.

There is really not much satisfaction for a divorcee unless she gets alimony or a new husband, and even then not much, especially in the latter event.

The Kibbey resignation report has again cropped up. These are about the only times when General Ainsworth's name is mentioned in the territorial papers.

It took outside capital a long time to locate Globe and they are just beginning to feel Kelvin on the map, judging from the numerous deals reported from that section.

The trial of Ruef, which begins today, will not be attended in its opening sessions by Mr. Heney. The latter has become so much attached to the grand jury that he really can't tear himself away.

The Tucson Post, the bright little newspaper published weekly in the ancient burg, has passed from Allen R. Jaynes to Herbert Brown of Yuma, who for many years was editor of the Tucson Citizen.

Today is election day in Chicago and it looks as though Mayor Dunne, who went in with such a great hurrah two years ago, will go out. And the people will say, "Well Dunne, thou good and faithful servant."

Boss Abe Ruef of San Francisco is trying to free himself of Elisor Biggy. We have always heard that Mr. Biggy is a perfect gentleman and cannot understand why Mr. Ruef objects so strenuously to his company.

A Toledo boy has been re-made from an idiot by a surgical operation. There is nothing really remarkable about that. We have seen young men made from office clerks, etc., into mining experts by a mere change of wearing apparel.

We wouldn't think that President Roosevelt should have much of an opinion of General Ainsworth or "Sitting Bull" Wilson after the fizzle they made of the statehood campaign. At least, not enough to make either of them governor.

An indictment has been quashed in Louisiana because one of the grand jurors who returned it was unable to read or write English. New Mexico would be a veritable heaven for criminals if such a ruling were allowed there and stood as an authority.

The Nogales Oasis continues to attempt to justify its course in running paid writeups of mines, the editor holding that his critics are actuated by envy in not knowing so much about the mining business as he, whose expert opinion on mining properties is worth such a great amount of money. If he would come out and confess that he needed the money, no one would find fault with him and then he could at least in one instance not be accused of misrepresentations.

FORAKER AND OHIO

Senator Foraker has been very, very busy, too busy to pay any attention to next year's presidential politics, but not too busy to follow with some interest the straw votes for Taft as Roosevelt's successor. So he is moved to issue a statement intimating that he is ready and willing to try conclusions with Taft, discuss before the people the issues of the hour and enable them to vote intelligently at primaries for the election of delegates to a convention which should not only nominate a state ticket but "determine the preference of the Republicans of Ohio as to candidates for United States senator and for president," says the Chicago Record-Herald.

Mr. Foraker wants to "direct a popular vote" on the presidential and senatorial questions as the laws of Ohio permit, and he stands on his record.

It may be remarked in passing that the laws of Ohio do not permit much of a "direct popular vote," and that there's many a slip between the primary delegate election and the action of the convention as far as voicing the really popular sentiment is concerned.

However, Senator Foraker evidently believes in the formula, "Audacity, always audacity." He has "no opinions to conceal"; he has no opinion on such great national issues as railroad regulation that he could conceal if he would. He stands on his record—because he must. There is no room for shuffling and dodging. He has been an open and bold reactionary, and repentance at this juncture would not help him.

In the country at large, among the Republicans, there is no Foraker sentiment. The alignment, as we have noted, is between Taft, the representative of the Roosevelt spirit, and Fairbanks, the colorless conservative. In Ohio the situation may be somewhat different, but it would be interesting and instructive to have a really popular and honest judgment on the Foraker presidential claims. Does the senator actually imagine that the majority of Ohio Republicans prefer him to Taft—the Taft of the Philippines and Cuba, the Taft of the war department, the Taft of "plain duty"?

Whether he does or not, the people of the country would be glad to have the people of Ohio choose between Taft and Foraker in a fair and square fight.

Death of a Pioneer Lady in Globe

The death of an estimable lady occurred last night at 12 o'clock. She came to Arizona in the early days, when the civilizing voice of the six-shooter was the only law recognized, and has been closely associated with almost every shooting scrap of note in the territory for the last forty years or thereabouts.

Though she was of peculiar fickle disposition, never remaining true to any one wooer for more than two days at a time, yet she counted her lovers by the thousand from the drill and hammer man to the millionaire mine owner.

She occupied a domain exclusively her own and was constantly attended by a staff of courtiers who wore diamonds and gold and relieved one another regularly so as to keep the incessant burning night and day at her feet.

Though many predicted considerable excitement as the hour of her demise drew near, yet strange to say, her death was quite peaceable in the midst of a host of her admirers to the very last.

Her departure creates a void it will be difficult to fill and is particularly hard on those who devoted their lives night and day to her service, and whom rumor says she left entirely unprotected for, thus bearing out to the bitter end her unstable and inconstant character.

We have been unable to ascertain the lady's maiden name, but she was known to her votaries throughout the territory as The Goddess of Chance. D. W. D. All Fool's Day, 1907.

CANANEA MINER

KILLED IN BRAWL

Patrick Telley Shot to Death in Cabin at Capote Mine of Greene Company—Dowd and Dolan, Fellow Miners, Arrested on Charge of Murder.

A special from Cananea dated March 28 says:

Patrick Telley, a miner, aged 35 years, was shot and killed in a cabin at Capote mine last night. Ben Dowd and William Dolan, both miners, are in jail, charged with the murder.

The details of the tragedy may not be known for some time. As yet the entire affair is shrouded in mystery. Dowd, at about 10 p. m. Both these refused to make a statement, further than to deny knowledge of the killing.

Telley was shot just under the left eye the bullet, fired from a Colts 42, having penetrated his brain and caused instant death. The shooting occurred in the room of Dolan, at about 10 p. m. Both these men had been drinking from a gallon jug of whiskey in the room. Telley called on them and the tragedy ensued. When people ran into the room following the shot, they found Dowd and Dolan on a bed and Telley dead on the floor. Lying near them was the revolver with which the fatal shot was fired. All of the chambers were loaded except the one holding the empty shell.

The police were at once notified of the affair and promptly placed the men found in the room under arrest pending further investigation. They have been placed in solitary confinement for the present and it is not likely that a statement will be forthcoming from them before tomorrow, if then.

Telley had been employed as a miner in Cananea for over six years. He bore an excellent reputation as a quiet, sober and industrious man. Dowd and Dolan came here about ten months ago from Bisbee. They appeared quiet and industrious and were not known as drinking men or troublesome characters in any sense. Both are young men. The affair was a decided shock to the community, being the first tragedy that has been recorded in nearly a year.

BISBEE MAGNATES TALK OF GLOBE

Were Not Looking for Mines, But at Them and at the Old Dominion Smelter—Think Globe Is Where Bisbee Was Seven Years Ago.

The Bisbee Review tells in the following of the recent visit to Globe of a party of mining men of that city who came here to look at the smelter and mines of the Old Dominion, while we are forced to disagree with the assertion of one that Globe is where Bisbee was seven years ago:

B. M. Patterson, superintendent of the Shattuck Arizona and Denn-Arizona Mining companies, has returned to the city in company with L. C. Shattuck and Arthur Houle, with whom he has spent the last few days in the Globe district, examining the smelters at that point and the properties which are now placing the big Gila valley camp in the class of Arizona's important copper producing districts.

When asked if his trip to Globe indicated the entrance of the Shattuck crowd into that district, and what was the special purpose of the trip, Patterson said:

"As far as our entering the Globe field is concerned, there is nothing in the statement, at least at the present time, because we have our two properties in this district and a couple elsewhere to look after before branching out any more. Much as we would like to secure some of the good properties at Globe, there is no immediate prospect of our entering the field.

"The purpose of the trip to Globe was to inspect the workings of the smelters at that point, as we are contemplating the erection of a reduction plant and want to benefit by the experience of those who have gone before us. It was thought advisable to make a thorough examination of the Globe plant as well as those of the Copper Queen and Calumet & Arizona companies at Douglas before we commenced on this important project.

"I think I voice the sentiments of the gentlemen who made the trip when I say that we learned various things at Globe which will be of benefit to us in the conduct of our own affairs and that we were well repaid for our time and trouble.

"Globe itself has reached the stage that Bisbee was in about seven years ago and is fast forging to the front. Of course, up to the present time, there have not been any extraordinary large properties opened up there, outside of the Old Dominion property, but there are several corporations which own ground that will, without a doubt, be classed among the big producers of Arizona in a short time. In short, the camp is a good one, capitalists have confidence in it, and I think it will be an important factor in the copper industry at no distant day."

SHE'S PRETTY AND WANTS A COWBOY

California Girl Writes to Tucson Paper That She Would Like to Correspond With a Refined Cowboy—Citizen Says They Are All Refined.

WANTED—By a young lady, 23 years old, rather pretty, medium size, to correspond with a refined cowboy. Address Miss Mae Landers, Postoffice Box 1515, Larkspur, Cal.

And then the love editor of the Tucson Citizen emits the following hysterics:

Whoop! and whoop and then some more!

What need is there now for any of the knights of the saddle, spurs and lariat to say that they are forever doomed to a lonely life amidst the grass valleys and the rough and rocky foothills of the mountains?

Here is the chance of a lifetime. Here is the opportunity for the knights of the southwest, who have been famed for years in novel and in play, to get them a helpmeet.

The young lady whose name is given above is without doubt "gone" on the gentleman with the broad sombrero and the "chaps." There is no doubt but that her heart and hand are awaiting for one of the experts who bestride the hurricane decks of the bucking bronchos or who can rope the fleeing steer in thirty seconds or better.

In her letter to the Citizen the young lady confesses her admiration for the cowboy. And in the advertisement which she asks to be inserted her claims are mildly put. The young lady suggests that the cowpunchers who answer her "ad." pay for it. But that is entirely unnecessary. The Citizen is willing to play the role of Cupid to the extent that the "ad." is given gratuitously.

And the young lady as she says is of the "skiddoo" age. Also the lovely age. She is "rather pretty" she says. A modest and sensible statement to be sure. And who is there who has the temerity to display his gross unacquaintance with beauty by saying that California girls are not only "rather pretty" but strikingly beautiful?

But still there is one feature about the letter—"a refined cowboy." Who has ever seen one of the hardy sons of the plains who is not refined and gentlemanly? They say harsh words at times; they even curse their bronchos. They play cards—yes, even for money. Sometimes they put daylight through the ingrates, but these mild exhibitions are always at a stag party.

YUMA INDIANS CALL PAPAPOS "RED SCABS"

There come near being bloodshed among the Indians at the reservation recently. The reclamation service has been employing large numbers of Indians at $1.65 per day in clearing away brush and trees. The Yuma Indians decided to go on a strike for $1.75 a day. They accordingly refused to work. The government then imported large numbers of Cocopahs and Papagos, ancient enemies of the Yumas. The Yumas were highly incensed that these scabs should come onto the Yumas' own sacred reservation and take the bread from the Yumas' mouths. But at the critical moment they found that one faction of the Yumas had weakened and gone to work for $1.65.—Yuma Sun.
